After the Running Record.

With two runaways in Stony Plain in one week chalked up, the season for this exciting out-door sport may now be said to be at its height. Saturday's event started at 2.28½ from scratch at the south end of Main street. In former runaways, the equines have invariably run up hill. In this instance the prancers changed the process and ran down hill. When the team reached Railway avenue an acrobatic horseman jumped aboard the outfit and succeeded in turning the animals in to the area at the Armbruster mill, where they were pulled up. Mike says 'twouldn't surprise him any if a farmer's team landed home some day with the hind axle and spare tire from a parked car on Main street.

Safe Cars And Reckless Drivers

Between six and seven o'clock on Tuesday morning is the safest hour in the week to ride in an automobile. The most dangerous hour is between five and six o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Automobile accidents happen most frequently in broad daylight, on clear days, when roads are dry. If the driver of the car is between 20 and 30 years old, the chances of an accident taking place are 51 per cent. greater than if he is between 40 and 50.

These are some surprising and little known facts about automobile accidents brought out by an analysis recently completed by United States insurance statisticians. They relate, of course, to that country, but inasmuch as conditions in Canada and the United States are so similar in so many respects it is possible that we would not be far astray if, in the absence of detailed information relating to Canada, these figures were applied to this Dominion as well.

What are the causes behind the rapidly increasing hazards of motoring? In at least nine out of ten automobile accidents, the cause can be traced directly to an error made either by a driver or a pedestrian. Only once in 20 times is the machine definitely at fault. The commonest mistakes made by a driver, leading to a fatality, are driving off the roadway, exceeding the speed limit for the time and place, and going ahead without having the right of way. Other important factors in accidents caused by drivers are: Reckless driving, driving on the wrong side of the road, skidding, cutting in, passing on a curve or hill, and failing to signal properly. Left turns are far more dangerous than right turns.

The "weaving driver," "the speeder," and the "road hog" are the three types of motorists who cause most highway accidents. Among pedestrians, those who cross the street in the middle of the block, walk in the direction of traffic on country roads, or step out into the street from behind parked cars are responsible for a majority of accidents in which those on foot are struck by passing autos.

In only 56,330 cases, out of 1,281,400 accidents studied, were the crashes due to mechanical failure. When the cars were at fault, defective brakes led the list as a cause. In the order named, other defects contributed to the accident toll: Lack of chains on slippery roads, blowouts and punctures, one or both headlights out, defective steering gear, glaring headlights, taillights out or obstructed.

If you ask most people under what road conditions a majority of auto accidents occur, you will probably be told: "icy roads" or "wet streets." As a matter of fact, the insurance company experts found that only three per cent. of the 1931 accidents occurred on icy surfaces and less than 16 per cent. on wet surfaces. In 91 per cent. of all mishaps, the roads were dry. Also, 95 out of every 100 accidents resulting in deaths occurred under clear weather conditions. And most accidents happened in daylight.

When a motorist starts on a ride, if he meets with an accident, the chances that it will occur before he gets out of the driveway are one to 200. The chances of its occurring on a railroad crossing are slightly greater; of its happening on a bridge, one to 100; of its taking place on a curve, one to 25; on a state highway, one to five, and at a street crossing, one to two and a half.

What kind of drivers are most frequently in accidents: Young or old, experienced or inexperienced? Figures compiled in the survey upset some popular beliefs. For instance, they show that more than 91 per cent. of all drivers involved in accidents which resulted in fatalities or injuries were experienced motorists with a year or more practice at the wheel. Over-confidence is given as a major reason for the high percentage of experienced motorists who figured in mishaps.

So far as age is concerned, the most hazardous time for automobile driving is under 20. The accident record of drivers under this age, last year, was 39 per cent. worse than the average. The record of those between 20 and 30 was 29 per cent. worse than the average; between 30 and 40, three per cent. better than the average; between 40 and 50, 29 per cent. better; and beyond 50, 38 per cent. better.

While it is still a disputed point whether the increasing average speed of automobiles and the lifting of the speed limit on country roads is causing more accidents, the investigation shows undeniably that the stepping up of speeds has increased the seriousness of accidents when they have occurred. Incidentally, too, researches just made by the Chicago Motor Club reveal that travelling a mile a minute is three times as expensive as motoring 45 miles an hour. The cost 15 miles an hour trebles the upkeep costs of the car.

With such facts in mind as have been established by this survey, motor car drivers should govern themselves accordingly, and by so doing they may save themselves much sorrow. First, check over your car for defects which it has been shown are the chief cause of accidents resulting from mechanical weaknesses. Then note the principal causes of accidents due to the driver himself, where and when they are most likely to take place, and the steps that should be taken to prevent them taking place. If an accident takes place, the responsibility is, first and foremost, your own; secondly, the driver of the other car; thirdly, the condition of your own car; fourthly, the condition of the other fellow's car. Therefore, it is up to you to prevent an accident.

Unusual Guest Of Honor

Skeleton Made London University Dinner Creepy Affair

A man who died a century ago was the guest of honor at a dinner given at University College, London, England.

He was Jeremy Bentham, great philosopher and lawyer, who was one of the founders of the college.

He wore the same clothes as he did a century ago, and looked on with tacit approval at the 20 distinguished professors, economists, philosophers, and lawyers who toasted him.

The eerie dinner was given to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of his death. In his will he had expressed the hope that his disciples gathered together to discuss his great work, would have his skeleton in their midst.

For years the skeleton has sat on a chair in a glass case, dressed in his own clothes, with the skull at his feet, and a wax effigy of his face in its proper place.

The distinguished gathering drank to his health, and then proceeded to discuss his great ideas which have become a part of our legal and moral standards.

It was Jeremy Bentham who said, "The greatest happiness for the greatest numbers."

Appointed Acting

President For C.N.R.

S. J. Hungerford, One of Canada's Best Known Railroad Operating Officers

With the resignation of Sir Henry Thornton as Chairman and President of the Canadian National Railways, effective August 1, Mr. Hungerford, Operating Vice-President, has been appointed by the Board of Directors, as Acting President of the Company.

Samuel J. Hungerford is one of Canada's best known railroad operating officers. His experience has ranged, in more than 45 years, from the humble position of machinist's apprentice, where he commenced in 1886, to that of Vice-President in charge of Operation, Maintenance and Construction of Canada's largest railroad system, the Canadian National Railways.

Born in Bedford, Que., sixty years ago, S. J. Hungerford entered railroading as an apprentice with the Southeastern Railway, later part of the C.P.R., at Farnham, Que. Completing his apprenticeship he worked as machinist at many points in Quebec, Ontario, and Vermont, and in 1894 was appointed Chargeman at Windsor Street Station, Montreal.

From 1897 Mr. Hungerford worked as assistant foreman, locomotive foreman and general foreman at Farnham, Megantic and McAdam Junction, and in 1901 was transferred to Cranbrook, B.C., as locomotive foreman with the Canadian Pacific. From Cranbrook, he moved in 1903 to Calgary as master mechanic of the Canadian Pacific's western division, and in the following year was made superintendent of the locomotive shops at Winnipeg, becoming in 1908 superintendent of shops.

In 1910, Mr. Hungerford joined the Canadian Northern Railway, as superintendent of rolling stock with headquarters at Winnipeg and in 1915 he moved to Toronto in the same position. In 1917 Mr. Hungerford became general manager of the Eastern Lines, Canadian Northern Railway, and in the following year was named Assistant Vice-President, Operating, Maintenance and Construction Departments of the Canadian National Railways with headquarters at Toronto. With the taking over of the Grand Trunk Pacific lines, Mr. Hungerford, in October, 1920, became Vice-President in charge of Operating and Maintenance Departments of the Canadian National and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways and two years later, in October, 1922, he was made Vice-President and General Manager of these lines, with headquarters at Toronto, in which position he continued until his appointment, in February, 1923, as Vice-President in charge of Operation, Maintenance and Construction of the Canadian National System, with headquarters at Montreal.

Throughout conditions have altered vastly since the days when S. J. Hungerford commenced service as an apprentice at Farnham in 1886. Then, woodburning locomotives were still in use; cars were coupled by the old "links and pins" and airbrakes were unknown. Hours of work were long and pay was small, and apprentice training systems were not brought to the stage where they are today when every effort is made to educate and encourage the boys to learn while they earn and fit themselves for better jobs.

Locomotives of 1886 were pygmies as compared with the 6100, 4100 and the 5700 classes of engines used to-day, on the Canadian National System, and the trains they hauled were mere toys compared with the huge freight loads and all-steel passenger trains which are now operated. Practices of handling locomotives in shops and on the road have altered with the growth in size of locomotives which have had to be "shopped" and many of the improvements in shop practices in Canada have developed under the watchful eye of S. J. Hungerford, who has always held the admiration of those who worked with him because he knew every phase of the work so thoroughly himself.

Lakes And Rivers Of Canada Offer Means Of Providing Enjoyable Trips By Canoe

The requirements for a successful and satisfactory trip by canoe: suitable water, picturesque country and an excellent summer climate, can be found almost anywhere in Canada. The innumerable lakes and rivers make the choice of trips almost unlimited. One can travel for hundreds of miles on any of the great rivers, journeying from lake to lake and portaging where rapids impede or heights intervene. Having decided upon the kind of trip to be made, whether one requiring much effort and experience, or one quite free from rapids and portages, the canoeist has only to select his route.

Although railways and the automobile have provided a means of rapid travel, the canoe is still the best transport, there are countless places in the quiet of the forest, out of reach of either. It is such places, approachable only by canoe, that invite the adventurer to partake of the wonders of nature. The railways and the development of good roads have, however, made the majority of canoe routes in Canada easily accessible, and one need not travel far from the majority of Canadian cities before reaching the embarking point of an enjoyable trip.

In certain parts one may follow the streams for a long summer outing and never see a village or dwelling, yet civilization lies so close that return is easily possible. Waterfalls, rapids large and small, lakes of singular beauty hidden deep in the forest, and islands covered with pine and spruce trees are some of the interesting features encountered en route. In some places one may travel hundreds of miles without meeting obstacles of any kind.

There is a remarkable contrast between the conventionality of modern life and the full naturalness of life in the great forest, where one may relax, amid the beauty of natural surroundings. A strange appeal of imagination comes to one while following the routes of the historic explorers and contentment prevails amid the constant change of beautiful scenery.

Canadian lakes and rivers are renowned for the variety and abundance of their fish. Brook and lake trout are numerous, the latter often weighing from fifteen to thirty pounds while other species of fish are plentiful. Eastern Canada is well provided with waterways, well suited to travel by canoe. Canal systems, rivers large and small, rapids, falls, lakes, stillwaters and all the requirements for an enjoyable canoe trip, await the devotee of the paddle. Whether it be a cruise through a well settled region, or an adventurous journey through the wilderness, the canoeist will find an almost unlimited number of lakes and streams.

The waterways of western Canada, in days gone by, assisted materially in unveiling the mystery of the great country between Lake Superior and the Pacific Ocean. Radiating from Lake Winnipeg, are routes of romantic interest. Nestling among the mountains of the coast are many beautiful lakes, also streams that wind through the hills, where sport for the angler and hunter may be found.

The National Development Bureau of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, has prepared a series of four booklets entitled "Canoe Trips," copies of which may be had by our readers, free of charge. The series covers the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada. Further detailed information is available to those who require specific data on any particular trip.

Newspaper Advertising

The Popular Medium Of Publicity Used By The Major Industries. Major industries continue to show a preference for newspaper advertising over that of other mediums, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association reported at New York.

The association's bureau of advertising announced the results of a survey showed 435 national advertisers spent $143,365,000 in newspaper advertising last year. Magazine space was used by 190 of these firms to the extent of $78,317,815, and 121 used radio broadcasts entailing an expenditure of $21,228,862. The bureau reported that newspapers were the favored medium in 25 of the 32 industrial groups represented.

Railway Man Retires

W. C. Blake, Canadian National Railway Official Had Long Career With Company

Mr. Blake, Auditor of Payrolls for the Western Region, Canadian National Railways, who retires from that position on July 31, after completing 43 years of continuous service out of a connection of 54 years in companies now comprising the National Railways, was born in Liverpool, England. He entered the service of Edwin H. Wood & Co. of that city, European Agents of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, as office boy in October, 1878, remaining with Mr. Wood and his successor, T. W. Edwards, until June, 1888. In the spring of 1889 Mr. Blake came out to Canada, and on August 1st of that same year entered the service of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada in the Audit Department at Montreal, filling various positions therein up to the end of December, 1902. On January 1st, 1903, he entered the service of the Canadian Northern Railway at Winnipeg as clerk in charge of statistics in the Audit Department, was advanced to the position of Chief Clerk, to General Auditor in December, 1910, and on removal of General Audit Office to Toronto in November, 1913, was appointed Divisional Accountant for Western Lines, which position he held until final consolidation of the Canadian National Railways, when he was appointed Auditor of Payrolls for the Western Region, in March, 1923.

Parrot Is Good "Watchdog"

One pet paid for its keep in London when thieves raided a house in Mayfair. A householder trained his parrot as a "watchdog" to protect his property and recently it had a chance to display its skill. Polly flew at the raiders and drew blood. Postmen and overturned furniture testified to the ferocity of the battle. The robbers were captured and told the court how they had been driven off by the screeching, fighting bird.

Some Outstanding Facts About Canada's Present Standing In The Empire

Not Always a Sailor

Columbus Got Taste Of Sea From Father-In-Law

The Portuguese Islands, of which Madeira is the chief, have a charm of their own. Not all have recalled that Christopher Columbus once followed a girl to this, her island home. She was Menina Perestrelo, whom he had met at her school in Portugal. He married her in 1473, making his home first at Porto Santo and then at Funchal. His father-in-law was a mariner, and with him Christopher got some of his taste of the sea. In 1486, wrecked sailors drifted into Funchal and their pilot before he died gave Columbus his charts and papers. It was studying these that gave Columbus his ideas of an unknown land in the West.

Gas Pressure Dropping

Tests Made At Turner Valley Give Some Cause For Uneasiness

Tests made by the Turner Valley Gas Conservation Board reveal the gas pressure in Turner Valley fields is dropping quickly. The tests are being made with a view to curtailing gas production in an effort to prolong the field's life.

Compared with the situation 11 months ago, the tests show, there has been a reduction in gas pressure by nearly 200 pounds per square inch in the north and central parts of Turner Valley. If rigid conservation is not enforced, the board maintains, wells in this area will be unable to supply gas to Calgary under their own pressure in less than three years.

Portrait Partly Tailored

Artist Forgot Buttonholes and They Were Worked In

Should the portrayed likeness of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University ever decide its cost should be buttoned, buttonholes now have been provided. An observant Harvard student, living in Lowell House where the large portrait hung for a year, discovered that the artist painted two buttons on the suit, but forgot the buttonholes. But that has been "repaired" by the addition of two finely tailored buttonholes.

Some Memory Experts

Both Women and Men Have Done Remarkable Work

There was once a mathematical wizard, a young chap who was rather stupid in other respects, but could stand beside a railroad track while a long freight train was passing by, jot down in his brain the numbers of every box car, and after the train had passed recite the long list of five and six cipher numbers without one error. Memory experts have done some remarkable work in memorizing whole books, long legal instruments, and other literature. In the case of military spies it is often necessary for them to memorize secret orders so that they cannot be caught with written evidence on their persons. A Miss Bessy Neumann has memorized the Old Testament and can recite it from beginning to end. She now is learning Shakespeare's plays by heart.

Contract Bridge

By Hamlin B. Hatch, Cavendish Club, Toronto

Defensive Tactics

In my previous article a general outline was given of the high card and distributional strength necessary for the overcalling hand to hold when making a defensive overcall. It was shown that, when vulnerable, the overcaller must have a stronger hand both in high cards, and in taking tricks in the suit bid, than when not vulnerable. Also that, when a bid of two is necessary to overcall, the hand overcalling must be considerably stronger especially when vulnerable. What I will try to show today is how far it is good bridge to carry defensive bidding.

This must be answered by an analysis of the invulnerable side of the score sheet. An average contract rubber may be said to average one thousand points profit to the winners. This one thousand points for the purpose of this analysis, is divided into four hundred points had six hundred points. The four hundred points represents the concealed or invulnerable value of the first game of the rubber. The six hundred points represents the concealed or invulnerable value of the final game of the rubber. If then, a first game of a rubber is worth four hundred points, it follows that defense which stops the first game at a cost of four hundred points, is good defense. Notwithstanding the hard fact, that the defense partnership has against them in the honor column a definite four hundred points. Still if the incurring of this four hundred point penalty stops the game by the adversarial, the defense players have really broken even. If, however, after the deal is completed and the four hundred point penalty has been incurred, it is found that the opponents could not have made game, then the penalty incurred is a total loss, to the penalty incurring. It follows then, that defense bidding must be predicated on two basic factors:—

First. It is certain that the opponents can make their contract. If it is not certain, then as a rule, it is best, rather than overbid and take a penalty, to allow the opponents to play the hand with the hope of defeating them. If it is certain that the opponents can make their contract, then the defender must know how large a penalty he is going to incur, and that knowledge constitutes the second basic factor.

It is necessary for the overbidding side to closely approximate, through their knowledge of their combined holdings, together with a knowledge of the combined holdings of the adversarial, the number of tricks they will take when playing the defensive contract. It is assumed always in this discussion that the defender's contract has been doubled.

The following table shows the penalties which are allowable to defenders in order to save game.

To save first game the defenders may be set three tricks doubled. If the contract is set less than three tricks, the defenders show a profit. If set more than three tricks the defenders show a loss.

To save second game, when the defenders are not vulnerable, a set of four tricks doubled may be taken. If the set is less than four tricks, the defenders show a profit, if more than four tricks a loss.

To save rubber game a set of two tricks doubled may be taken. If less than two tricks the defenders show a profit, if more than two tricks a loss.

Defense Against Partial Scores

About one game in four on the average is made by a side having a partial score. It follows then that a partial score is worth one quarter of the game score premium, plus the partial score itself. This gives an invulnerable value to any partial score of between one hundred and fifty and two hundred points. The factor of safety in defense overbidding to save partial scores is very small and it takes very close figuring by the defenders to successfully defend against partial score contracts. As a rule the most expert bridge player is in difficulties, when trying to figure whether he is going to be set two or three tricks. If to save partial score he is set three tricks doubled invulnerable he has suffered a big loss. If he is set two tricks doubled he has broken even, and if he is set one trick doubled he has made a profit.

To sum up then, defensive over-bidding is a very important factor in Contract, but its use must be predicated on precise card valuation methods, and also an ability by the player to estimate closely the losing tricks in the combined hands, if the contract is played in the overbid.

Memorial For Adventurers

Danes and Norwegians Plan To Erect Cairn At Churchill

Danes and Norwegians of the Lutheran Faith, are planning to erect a memorial cairn at Churchill to the memory of Captain Jens Munck and his party of 66 adventurers who founded "Winterhaven," on the shores of Hudson Bay in 1619. Announcement was made to this effect at Winnipeg recently by Rev. B. M. Hefrenning of Pine Creek, Minn.

Munck was sent out by King Christian the Fourth of Denmark and Norway in 1619. With the party was Chaplain Rasmus Jensen Aarhus, first Lutheran pastor to set foot in America. Along with 60 of the party, the pastor died of disease during the terrible winter of 1620, leaving Captain Munck and two men the survivors of the ill-fated expedition.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

Golden Text: "Thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."—Deuteronomy 5:5.

Lesson: Exodus 19:1 to 20:11.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 19:7-14.

Explanations and Comments

The First Commandment: Worship God Exclusively, verse 3.—When these laws were promulgated from Sinai the world was given over to the worship of many gods, and the words, "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me," mean "in addition to Me." The first commandment implies God's unity; it forbids polytheism, the worship of false gods.

"What a man loves, that is his god," Luther reminds us, and justifies this declaration by adding that what he loves he carries in his heart, goes about with it night and day, sleeps and wakes with it, be it what it may—wealth or self, pleasure or renown. "There are great many things which God will put up with in a human heart," says Ruskin; "there is the thing that is not God, but that up with second place." We cannot serve God and mammon.

The Second Commandment: Worship God Spiritually, verses 4-6. The second commandment forbids image worship, the making of an object of worship out of any given image or likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth. The earth was thought of as a flat and resting upon a huge abyss of water. God is Spirit; He, the true God, must not be worshipped under false forms.

For I, Jehovah thy God, am a jealous God, jealous of My honor, of the use of images which turn the worshiper's mind away from Me while they represent Me.

There is a danger that a crucifix, which is but a symbol, may come to be regarded as a charm, a divine talisman, and insensibly become important in a worshiper's mind as to hide from him the One it symbolizes. "Visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, upon the third and fourth generation of them that hate Me." A young man who asked a college professor why the text did not say that the sins of the fathers were regarded as the children's sins, as well as to the third and fourth, received this answer: "Because there will be no seventh or eighth generations. Sin extinguishes itself before it gets that far."

This edict is supported by a great physical law which proves that nature is the friend of righteous living and the foe of its opposite. Vice shortens life, weakens posterity and pollutes its blood. Virtue lengthens life and invigorates posterity, insuring it both health and intellectual strength. The children of the wicked may repudiate their parental heritage or the children of the good forsake the ways of their fathers. Here a conflict of principles arises. The law of heredity is offset by the law of free choice."—S. Parks Cadman.

The Fourth Commandment: Reverence God's Day, verses 8-11.—The seventh day is to be distinguished from other days by abstinence from labor. "The Sabbath was made for man," Jesus declared. The needs of body, mind, and spirit require one day of rest in seven.

Where Silence Rules

No Word is Ever Spoken in German Monastery

In the broad orchards of the monastery of Maravald, in the Elbe, Germany, the only sounds are the singing of the winds in the trees and the songs of the birds. The monks who prune the trees and pluck the fruit are silent. There is the strictest Catholic order of penitents in the world. From abbots to lay brother the monks wear a living, abiding silence of complete silence. Their dress is simple, and their monastic garb may be changed only every eight days. All of the inmates of the monastery sleep together on plain boards in one room.

Canada Exporting Less Wool

Manufacturers Are Using More Of Home Grown Product

"Three times as much Canadian-produced wool was bought last year by the Canadian industry as was exported," said Major Douglas Hallam, Secretary of the Canadian Woolen and Knit Goods Manufacturers Association, speaking in Toronto. The use of Canadian wool is steadily increasing, due to improved merchandising methods adopted by sellers, the 39% increase in yards of woollen cloth woven in Canada, and the duty placed on Argentine wool.

"In a report issued through the National Research Foundation the methods by which Canadian wool gets to market are outlined. Abattoirs buy live lambs and sheep, the wool is marketed as pulled wool, and over 80% of such wool is bought by Canadian manufacturers. Seventy woollen and knitting mills bought wool direct from farmers. One hundred and eight firms listed as wool dealers of co-operative associations handled Canadian wool for re-sale. Approximately five million lbs. of the clip was used in home industries.

This Burglar Alarm Works

Sounds Siren, Explodes a Bomb and Imprisons Thief

The smash-and-grab Jewell thief, who has infested England for the past few months, has met his equal in science.

Neither the vigilance of the police, nor the precautions of jewellers have succeeded in diminishing the number of these brazen robberies. But it will take the best criminal brains in the world to carry on in the face of a new precautionary invention.

A demonstration of the invention was given before jewellers at South-end-On-Sea. A jeweller turned himself into a robber for the purpose of the demonstration.

A hole large enough for a man to pass was made in a jewelry shop by exploding, followed by a smoke bomb which cased a screen about the jewels and blinded the raider.

As though this was not enough a secret steel panel snapped across the window, imprisoning the raider and protecting the jewels.

Brain Controls Or Slow Reading

Average Speed Is Around Six Words Per Second

Six words per second, or about four and one-half hours for a standard size book is good average reading speed, and most people can aspire to reach this seemingly extraordinary rapidly. It is the brain, not the eye, which determines the speed of reading. The eye cannot move steadily, but must move in a series of jerks, with pauses between. These pauses are needed to see the printed page clearly, but still more to give time for the meaning to be grasped.

BELIEVES WHEAT TARIFF WOULD BENEFIT CANADA

Winnipeg, Man.—It is not entirely true that the grain trade of Canada and western grain growers consider a preferential tariff in favor of Canadian wheat in the British market would be of no advantage to Canada, according to James R. Murray, general manager of the Alberta Pacific Grain Company Limited, and at one time executive of the United Grain Growers.

In a statement, Mr. Murray said: "It is ridiculous to suggest, as press despatches from Ottawa during the past few days indicate, that the entire grain trade of Canada and grain growers of the west consider that a preferential tariff in favor of Canadian wheat in the British market would be of no advantage to Canada."

"Confidential briefs, indicating such a view, may have been submitted to the Dominion Government by the authorized spokesmen of various bodies, but it is absurd to assume there is no contrary opinion among those they purport to represent. The official representations made by grain trade spokesmen are not the views of all grain dealers any more than the wheat pools and provincial government express the views of all farmers in the west."

"Almost everyone can agree that a quota system would be cumbersome and useless, but a preferential tariff is a different matter. Personally, I believe the free entry of Canadian wheat into the British market, by far the biggest importing market in the world, with a duty against non-empire wheat, would be a distinct advantage in marketing our Canadian crop and over a period of years would assist in obtaining better prices for our western grain growers."

"Considering the almost prohibitive tariffs against all wheat imports now in effect in all European countries, I believe there is much to be gained and nothing lost by such a preference."

"It seems to me unfortunate, particularly at this time, when wheat growers in western Canada need all the assistance and encouragement they can get, that spokesmen who at best supposedly represent less than half the farmers in the west, should take the position that a preferential tariff on our wheat in the British market is a matter of supreme indifference to them."

"Whatever the views of our western farmers may have been on this matter 15 or 20 years ago, I do not believe they are today indifferent to the advantages that would accrue to them from such a preference."

"I believe that if the Dominion Government can, in exchange for tariff concessions on British manufactures entering the Canadian market, they will accomplish something of great benefit to the whole of Canada and will earn the thanks of the majority of farmers and business men in western Canada."

Soviet Restrictions Against Sales Removed

Peasants May Sell Products With Exception Of Grain

Moscow, Russia.—Soviet authorities announce a new important step in the direction of removing official restrictions against sales by Russian peasants of their own products.

Hereafter all peasants living within a distance of about 30 miles of Moscow are freed from contracts which heretofore obligated them to deliver their produce to state co-operative organizations at fixed prices.

An exception was made regarding grain. Grain contracts will remain in operation.

The only reservation is that those peasants who have not joined the collective farms must carry out 50 per cent of their contracts for potato deliveries.

Calgary, Alberta.—Calgary's transient unemployed situation was relieved somewhat when Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen permitted a number of the workless wanderers to journey eastward to harvest fields in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

It was learned, however, the men were still not permitted to journey past Winnipeg. Only those the police felt sure were destined to harvest jobs were allowed to leave Calgary via "the rods."

Gorgulov Found Guilty

Assassinator Of President Paul Doumer Must Pay Penalty

Paris, France.—Dr. Paul Gorgulov was found guilty of assassinating President Paul Doumer, of France, at the close of his trial.

Witnesses, telling of Gorgulov's life, said he had to struggle against frequent hysterical outbursts.

Gorgulov protested violently when one alienist said that while not mentally deranged he could not be called entirely normal.

Ivan Lazareff, a Russian laborer, declared on the stand that Gorgulov had been a member of the old Russian cheka, or secret police, and testified that Gorgulov and other members of the cheka captured him on one occasion and tortured him, twisting his arms and beating him, burning his arms and bending back his fingers until they broke.

Two of the defence alienists said Gorgulov unquestionably was insane.

Another member of the party is not accounted for and it is feared that he met the same fate. Three managed to cling to the upturned boat and reached the shore safely while another swam to shore.

Wide-Spread Plot

Unearth Plan To Wreck Banks In United States

Chicago.—Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, said he had reports from practically every large city in the United States concerning a plot to wreck banks by circulating unfounded rumors against them.

Informed of an investigation at Pontiac, Mich., into such a plot, said to have been directed by a radical group interested in fomenting a social revolution, Traylor said the same tactics had been used in Chicago.

"There is no doubt," Traylor said, "but that runs on Chicago banks were caused by circulation of rumors by radically interested persons. Anonymous telephone calls were used in attempts to cause panic among depositors of even the largest and strongest banks."

"Reports were received in Chicago from many other cities where the same system was used. I am of the belief that the plot against banks was nation-wide."

Estimating the Crop

Grain Experts Talk Of 430,000,000 Yield This Season

Winnipeg, Man.—Grain experts who have just returned from a crop inspection tour of western Canada, said that conditions at July 20 indicated a prairie wheat crop estimated at 430,000,000, slightly below the 10-year average of 450,000,000 bushels.

Extreme heat during the past 10 days and lack of rain in parts of central and southern Saskatchewan may cause a slight revision of these figures, they stated, but on the whole crop conditions were reported to be fairly good.

Slight deterioration has taken place in southern Saskatchewan in areas which suffered from drought last year, and rainfall is needed if the standard of the crop is to be maintained, they said. Conditions in Alberta, northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba were found to be very good.

Mystery Shipment Of Gold

London, Eng.—A "mystery" shipment of £450,000 in gold left Plymouth for New York recently, and the news caused much surprise on the London bullion market. Bankers, however, believed it to be a private transaction.

Belfast, Ireland.—Nationalist members of the North-n Ireland party received a resolution regarded as equivalent to a command from the "Irish Republic Army" calling upon them to attend no more sessions of the Ulster House of Commons.

TRADE TREATY WITH S. AFRICA EXPECTED SOON

Ottawa, Ont.—Negotiations between Canada and South Africa since the opening of the Imperial Economic Conference have been so successful that a trade agreement between them is expected in two weeks. It was made clear that this treaty will not conflict with the broader negotiations of the conference.

Experts from the Department of Trade and Commerce, which is under Hon. H. H. Stevens, are meeting with the advisers of the South African delegation and smoothing out the difficulties. They are optimistic that an agreement can be arrived at which will greatly increase the trade between the two countries.

Canada has been seeking for some time to develop trade with South Africa, and this year is buying some 60,000 tons of sugar from that country. There is also hope of increasing the importations of pineapples, wool, oranges, lemons, and sisal, a type of hemp cordage.

The balance of trade between the two countries has been considerably in favor of Canada. In the last calendar year she sold South Africa goods to the value of $9,202,200, and bought from her to the value of $4,416,400.

In the fiscal year ending March 31, 1931, Canada sold South Africa: wheat, $2,195,300; rubber tires, $1,027,400; newsprint, $1,004,500; automobiles, $2,023,000; farm machinery, $530,400; electrical goods, $400,000; flour, $275,400; binder twine, $79,400; wood products, $300,000; apples, $49,100; rubber boots and shoes, $144,000; canned fish, $121,000; wrapping paper, $400,000. There was also an extensive list of miscellaneous goods in which it is hoped to increase the sales. Lumber is looked upon as one of the products in which there is considerable possibility.

At the present time South Africa enjoys the British preferential tariff in goods coming into Canada.

Outlines Air Mail Service

Iceland Route Offers Advantages Says Captain Von Gronau

Montreal, Que.—An air mail service from Europe to the Pacific Coast was briefly outlined by Captain Wolfgang von Gronau in an interview with the Canadian Press.

"The steamships are so fast now we can get little competition between Europe and New York," Captain von Gronau said. "But a service direct from Europe via Iceland, Greenland and across the continent to the Pacific Ocean with intermediate stops should offer many advantages and a great saving of time. It is to study such a project that we have made this present flight."

He said he had been in touch with the Royal Canadian Air Force for information about flying conditions and routes in western Canada. The captain was glad to hear his gasoline had arrived safely at Prince Rupert, B.C.

PREFERENTIAL TARIFF FOR CANADIAN WHEAT FAVORED BY MURRAY

James R. Murray, General Manager of the Alberta Pacific Grain Company, Limited, has issued the following statement favoring preferential tariffs on wheat from the Dominions entering the Motherland:

"It is ridiculous to suggest, as Press despatches from Ottawa during the past few days indicate, that the entire Grain Trade of Canada and grain growers of the West consider that a preferential tariff in favor of Canadian wheat in the British market would be of no advantage to Canada. Confidential briefs, indicating such a view, may have been submitted to the Dominion Government by the authorized spokesman of various bodies, but it is absurd to assume there is no contrary opinion among those they purport to represent. The official representations made by Grain Trade spokesmen are not the views of all grain dealers any more than the Wheat Pools and Provincial Governments express the views of all farmers in the West.

"Almost everyone can agree that a quota system would be cumbersome and useless, but a preferential tariff is a different matter. Personally, I believe the free entry of Canadian wheat into the British market, by the biggest wheat importing market in the world, with a duty against non-Empire wheat, would be a distinct advantage in marketing our Canadian crop and over a period of years would assist in obtaining better prices for our Western grain growers. Whatever the views of our Western farmers may have been on this matter 15 or 20 years ago, I do not believe they are today indifferent to the advantages that would accrue to them from such a preference. I believe that if the Dominion Government can, in exchange for tariff concessions on British manufactures entering Canada, secure a preferential tariff in favor of Canadian wheat entering the British market, they will accomplish something of great benefit to the whole of Canada and will earn the thanks of the majority of farmers and business men in Western Canada."

Stony Plain Co-op.

The newly-formed Stony Plain Constituency Co-op. Ass'n has started in a very business-like way. It has been successful in securing orders from farmers for binder twine which will necessitate their ordering a number of carload lots to fill these orders. The association is handling the Holland make of twine, the prices of which will be found in their advt. on page eight.

British Statesmen Relax

The British delegation to the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa, headed by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council and former Prime Minister of Great Britain, despite its heavy labors during the five-day voyage to Canada on the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Britain" had its lighter moments. The scenes above show members of the delegation visiting the Navigating Bridge of the big white flagship, and Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Dominions Secretary, enjoying a game of quoits. Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin autographs a picture of the "Empress of Britain" for Captain Latta, her commander; looking on is Geoffrey Lloyd, M.P., a brilliant younger member of the House, who is his Parliamentary Private Secretary. Lower picture shows: Rt. Hon. Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Lord Haldane, and Sir John Gilmour, receiving a short lesson in navigation from Capt. R. G. Latta. While the delegates were on the bridge a small steamer showed a message of welcome, and above is seen the "Empress of Britain's" signal "Thank you."

Not So Easily Done.

The press is being asked to co-operate by publishing the names of the motorists who are from now on convicted of driving motor vehicles while under the influence of liquor. Anyone who makes this request could never have edited a weekly newspaper or he would know that this little request is not so easy as at first appears, says the High River Times.

Pete's Mistake.

"Where's Pete lately?"
"Haven't you heard? He got three years in the Pen for stealing a car."
"What did he want to steal a car for? Why didn't he just buy it and not pay for it, like a gentleman?"

The Beginner's Home Run

"I played golf yesterday for the first time."
"How did you make out?"
"Fine! Made a home run right at the start! Batted the ball into the tall grass in left field and ran around the entire course before they found it."

But she had courage enough to face the consequences of that refusal, to stand up to the clatter of poisonous tongues that must ensue; and trust enough to bank on the loyalty of her real friends, knowing it would be the same splendid loyalty that she herself would have given to any one of them in like circumstances. For Jean was a woman who won more than mere lip-service from those who called themselves her friends.

Burke had never been more mistaken in his calculations than when he counted upon forcing her hand by the mere fear of scandal. But none the less he held her—and held her in the meshes of a far stronger and more binding net, had he but realized it.

Looking back upon the episode from which her present predicament had actually sprung, Jean could almost have found it in her heart to smile at the relative importance which, at the time, that same incident had assumed in her eyes.

It had seemed to her, then, that for Blaise ever to hear that she had been locked in a room with Burke, had spent an uncounted hour or so with him at the "honeymooners' inn" would be the uttermost calamity that could befall her.

He would never believe that it had been by no wish of hers so she had thought at the time—and that fierce lover's jealousy which had been the origin of their quarrel, and of all the subsequent mutual misunderstandings and aloofness, would be roused to fresh life, and his distrust of her become something infinitely more difficult to combat.

But compared with the present situation which confronted her, the happenings of that past day faded into insignificance. She stood, now, face to face with a choice such as surely few women had been forced to make.

Whichever way she decided, whichever of the two alternatives she accepted, her happiness must pay the price. Nothing she could ever say or do, afterwards, would set her right in the eyes of the man whose belief in her meant everything. To drop out of an curtain compared with what the wall built up out of their frequent misunderstandings in the past seemed something as trifling and as easily demolished as a card house.

On the other hand, if she asked her good name and kept his freedom, she would be equally as cut off from him. Not that she feared that Blaise would take the blackest view of the affair—she was sure that he believed in her enough not to misjudge her as the world might do—but he would inevitably think that she had deliberately chosen to spend an afternoon at the Moor alone with Burke—"playing with fire" exactly as he had warned her not to, and getting her fingers burnt in consequence—and he would accept it as a sheer denial of the silent pledge of love understood which bound them together.

He would never trust her again—nor forgive her. No man could. Love's loyalty, rocked by the swift currents of jealousy and passion, is not of the same quality as the steady loyalty of friendship—that calm, unshakable confidence which may exist between man and man or woman and woman.

Moreover—and here alone was where the fear of gossip troubled her—even if the inconceivable happened and Blaise forgave and trusted her again, she could not go to him with a surer name, give him herself—when the gift was outwardly tarnished. The Tormarin pride was unyielding as a rock—and Tormarin women had always been above suspicion. She could not break the tradition of an old name—do that disservice to the man she loved! No, if she could not do so far out of the web in which she had been caught she was set as far apart from Blaise as though they had never met. Only the agony of meeting and remembrance would be with her for the rest of life!

Jean envisaged very clearly the possibilities that lay ahead—envisioned them with a breathless, torturing perception of their imminence. It was to be a fight—here and now—for the whole happiness that life might hold.

She turned to Burke breaking at last the long silence which had descended upon them.

"And what do you suppose I feel towards you, Geoffrey? Will you be content to have your wife think of you—as I must think?"

A faint shadow flitted across his face. The quiet scorn of her words—their underlying significance—flicked him like the raw.

"I'll be content to have you as my wife—at any price," he said stubbornly. "Jean"—a sudden urgency in his tones—"try to believe I hate all this as much as you do. When you're my wife, I'll spend my life in teaching you to forget it. In wiping the very memory of today out of your mind!"

"I shall never forget it," she said slowly. Then bitterly: "I wonder why you even offer me a choice—when you know that it is really no choice."

"Why? Because I swore to you that you should give me what I want—that I wouldn't take even a kiss from you again by force. But—unwillingly—I didn't know what it meant—the waiting!"

Outside, the mist had thickened into fog, curtaining the windows. The light lay dimmed to a queer, glimmering cloud, changing the values of things, and out of the shifting shadows her white face, with its scarlet line of scornful mouth, gleamed at him—elusive, tantalising as a flower that sways out of reach. In the uncertain half-light which struggled through the dulled window-panes there was something provocative, maddening—a kind of etherialized lure of the senses in the wavering, shadowed loveliness of her. The man's pulses leaped; something within him slipped its leash.

"Kiss me!" he demanded hoarsely. "Don't keep me waiting any longer. Give me your lips . . . now . . . now . . ."

She sprang aside from him, warding him off. Her eyes stormed at him out of her white face.

"You promised!" she cried, her voice sharp with fear. "You promised!"

The tension of the next moment strained her nerves to breaking-point. Then he fell back. Slowly his arms dropped to his sides without touching her, his hands clenching with the effort that it cost him.

"You're right," he said, breathing quickly. "I promised. I'll keep my promise." Then, vehemently: "Jean, why won't you let me take you home? I could put the car right in ten minutes. Come home!"

There was unmistakable appeal in his tones. It was obvious he hated the task to which he had set himself, although he had no intention of yielding.

She stared at him doubtfully.

"Will you? Will you take me home, Geoffrey? . . . Or—bitterly—"is this only another trap?"

"I'll take you home—at once, now—if you'll promise to be my wife, Jean, it's better than waiting till tomorrow—till circumstances force you into it!" he urged.

She was silent, thinking rapidly. That sudden break in Burke's control, when for a moment she had feared his promise would not hold him, had warned her to put an end to the scene—if only temporarily—as quickly as possible.

"You've very trusting," she said, forcing herself to speak lightly. "How do you know that I shall not give you the pledge you ask merely in order to get home—and then decline to keep it? I think—reflectively—"I should be quite justified in the circumstances."

He smiled a little and shook his head.

"No," he said quietly. "I'm not afraid of that. If you give me your word, I know you'll keep it. You wouldn't be—you—if you could do otherwise."

For a moment Jean was tempted, fiercely tempted to take his blind belief in her and use it to extricate herself from the position into which he had thrust her. As she herself had said, the circumstances were such as almost to justify her. Yet something within her, something that was an integral part of her whole nature, rebelled against the idea of giving a promise which, from the moment that she made it, she would have no smallest intention of keeping. It would be like the breaking of a prisoner's given parole—equally mean and dishonourable.

With a little mental shrug she dismissed the idea and the brief temptation. She must find some other way, some other road to safety. If only he would leave her alone, leave her just long enough for her to make a dash for it—out of the house into the wide wilderness of mist-wrapped moor!

It would be a virtually hopeless task to find her way to any village or to the farmstead, three miles away, of which Burke had spoken. She knew that. Even moon-wise folk not infrequently entirely lost their bearings in a Dartmoor mist, and as far as she herself was concerned, she had not the remotest idea in which direction the nearest habitation lay. It would be a hazardous experiment—fraught with danger. The danger was preferable to the dreadful safety of the bungalow.

In a brief space, stung to swift decision by that tense moment when Burke's self-mastery had given way, she had made up her mind to risk the open moor. The fog was preferable to the dreadful safety of the bungalow.

She sprang aside from him, warding him off. Her eyes stormed at him out of her white face.

He smiled a little and shook his head.

She must gain time—time to allay Burke's suspicions by pretending to make the best of the matter, and then, on some pretext or other, get him out of the room. It was the sole way of escape she could devise.

"Well, which is it to be?" Burke's voice broke in harshly upon the wild turmoil of her thoughts. "You promise—and Staple within an hour and a half? Or—the other alternative?"

"I don't think it can be either—yet," she said quietly. "What you're asking—it's too big a question for a woman to decide all in a minute. Don't you see?"—with a rather shaky little laugh—"it means my whole life! I—I must have time, Geoffrey. I can't decide now. What time is it?"

He struck a match, holding the flame close to the dial of his watch. Seven o'clock.

"Only that?" The words escaped her involuntarily. It seemed hours, an eternity, since she had read those few brief words contained in Judith's telegram. And it was barely an hour ago!

"Then—then I can have a little time to think it over," she said after a moment. "We could get back to Staple by ten if we left here at eight-thirty!"

"There's no time to lose. We should have to go slow through this infernal mist. Jean"—his voice took on a note of passionate entreaty—"inveat, won't you give me your promise and let me take you home? You shall never regret it. I—"

"Oh, hush!" she checked him quickly. "I can't answer you now, Geoffrey. I must have time—time. Don't press me now."

"Very well." There was an unaccounted gentleness in his manner. Perhaps something in the intense weariness of her tones appealed to him. "Are you very tired, Jean?"

"Do you know?" she spoke with some surprise, as though the idea had only just presented itself to her—"do you know, I believe I'm hungry! It sounds very material of me"—laughing a little. "A woman in my predicament ought to be quite above—or beyond—mere pangs of hunger!"

"Hungry! By Jove, and well you might be by this hour of the day!" he exclaimed remorsefully. "Look here, we'll have supper. There are some chops in the larder. We'll cook them together—and then you'll see what a really domesticated husband I shall make."

He spoke with a new gaiety, as though he felt very sure of his ultimate decision and glad that the strain of the struggle of opposing wills was past.

"Chop! How heavenly! I'm afraid!"—apologetically—"it's very unromantic of me, Geoffrey!"

He laughed and, striking a match, lit the lamp.

"Disgracefully so! But there are moments for romance and moments for chops. And this is distinctly the moment for chops. Come along and help me cook 'em."

He flashed a keen glance at her face as the sudden lamplight dispelled the shadows of the room. But there was nothing in it to contradict the insouciance of her speech. Her cheeks were a little flushed and her eyes very bright, but her smile was quite natural and unforced. Burke reflected that what were quite unattractive creatures. They would fight you to the last ditch and then suddenly surrender, probably liking you in socret all the better for having mastered them.

He had forgotten that he was dealing with a daughter of Jacqueline Maynor. All the actress that was Jean's mother came out in her now, called up from some hidden fount of inherited knowledge to meet the imperative need of the moment.

DEFINITE HELP FOR DWELLERS IN APARTMENTS

Orderless way found to cook fish, cauliflower and cabbage

CANAPAR IS A PRODUCT OF HAMILTON FIRM

Lives there a woman in apartment, duplex or home, who has not at some time or other reluctantly foregone fish, cabbage, and cauliflower because of the odors they give when being cooked? Or who has not suffered from other people close by who cooked these foods regardless?

Canapar entirely does away with this annoyance. More than that, it actually improves flavor and food value. Cooking in Canapar parallels the famous French method of steaming and confining food and its flavours to the closed casserole.

Canapar comes in large sheets, in a handy-size package. When boiling vegetables you simply wet the sheet of Canapar and make a bag similar to a pudding bag. If you are steaming them you line your steamer with Canapar, arrange food and seasoning, and fold back corners of the Canapar to prevent steam from dripping back.

Boiled or steamed fish is particularly delicious done this way. No fishy odor in the kitchen, no gummy kettle to clean. When roasting meat, line the pan with Canapar. It prevents the fats and juices from burning, and eliminates scouring of the pan afterwards.

Canapar saves fuel. You can cook three vegetables simultaneously in the same saucepan with it, without intermingling of flavors. And it is very economical. Just rinse the sheet after using it, hang it on the towel rack to dry. Use it over and over again.

Lots of women use Canapar for a dish cloth—it is so silky and satisfactory and does not spread lint. This is a particularly good use if you happen to pierce the sheet of Canapar while testing the food during the cooking. Canapar is made by the makers of PARA-SANI the famous heavy wadded paper in the Green box.

Special Offer

Most grocers, druggists and department stores sell Canapar. If you don't find it, send the coupon direct and we'll give you a new use if you look inside the sheet of Canapar containing one hundred recipes as a bonus for your trouble.

Shortly before nine o'clock Saturday evening a light, covered truck No. 12370, with several passengers aboard, was heading for one of the Beaches. While opposite Mr D Brox's gate, on the Highway, the left rear wheel came off. The succeeding jolt drove the truck over to the left side of the road, where it collided with the Chevrolet coupe No. 1974, whose driver was motoring back to Edmonton. The truck struck the coupe on its right fender, near the front wheel, but did little other damage. The coupe was able to proceed on its way after a little attention, but the truck had to be towed to a garage in the Grove.

Larger Municipal Units

Reeve McLaughlin presided at the meeting last week of Spruce Grove M. D. ratepayers, called to discuss the larger municipalities proposition, put forward by the Government. The hall was comfortably filled when the minister of municipalities, Hon R G Reid, rose to give an address, in which he outlined the many advantageous features of the proposed measure.

Premier Brownlee followed, and spoke on the new Farm Settlement Scheme. The Premier stressed the fact that all applicants for land would be examined with great care as to their qualifications and experience, so that those likely to fail would not be selected. The grant to each family, $600 would be shared in by the Province, Federal Gov't and municipality. The approval of the M.D. council must also be obtained.

After considerable discussion, in which a variety of opinions were voiced by ratepayers, it was quite evident that the feeling of the ratepayers was that, as conditions were not uniform in all the M.D.s, it would not be possible to apply the proposed plan on a fair workable basis to Spruce Grove M. D. Spruce Grove Municipality, being old established and its residents in a position to pay taxes readily, would be bearing an unfair burden for areas that were unorganised or had only a low assessment to work upon.
